

Mexican Adventure

It was a nice July 2003 weekend with friends in a place we had never been. The spot was Puerto Nuevo on the western coast of Baja California, also known as “Lobster Village.” We ate lots of lobster and slept to the sounds of Pacific waves crashing onto the beach just outside our New Port Hotel suite. At right, Yoshi poses on our balcony. Below, all of us gather at an Italian restaurant operated by a woman who, until recently, managed a Lake Forest restaurant. Clockwise are Yoshi and Jackson Sellers, Michelle and Stewart Moore (with Michelle looking like a movie star), Flavio Carrillo, and Fusako and Masataka Usami, convivial friends all.

